This is FYI,

Another article on the spill but it seems to be more balanced and not really pointing the finger at EPA but to a broader problem that exists at the Animas.

Shahid –

Not sure it is worth inundating every one with yet another link, but this article link below was reference by the article that Ben distributed as well. It is by High County News and it gives a good perspective on the history of Mining in the area and EPA's efforts to work with the community toward Superfund designation. The RPM's that have read it here in Denver feel it is a pretty balanced article.
